PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

The Fourth of July in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—The programme of the military review and sham fight and naval bombardment was carried out to-day successfully in the presence of an immense concourse of spectators, who crowned every eminence in the neighborhood of Presidio. The delay usually attendant upon the movements of the militia made it later than was intended when the exercises began, which necessitated sandwiching the bombardment in between the review and the sham fight of the land forces, instead of afterwards. It was about 11 o'clock when Governor Irwin and staff appeared on the field, and after an appropriate reception, reviewed the troops, who executed dress parade and marched in review, making a fine appearance. About noon the first gun was fired from Fort Point at the target on Lime Point, followed immediately by a general cannonade from Alcatraz, Black Point, Angel Island, and the men-of-war Pensacola, Portsmouth, and Jamestown—a part of the guns being directed at Lime Point target, and others at the fire ship moored near Arch Rock, just outside of Alcatraz. At the conclusion of the bombardment the troops went through various evolutions and finally threw out a skirmish line, which opened a brisk fire on the throng of spectators congregated on the eastern extremity of the field, while two field batteries poured supposititious grape and cannister among them. The troops then advanced in line of battle, firing rapidly, and finally made a gallant bayonet charge, which scattered the men, women and children in disorder. A squadron of U S cavalry meantime gave the spectators a taste of real work, charging at full gallop across the plain. A gentleman and lady, in a buggy, incautiously attempted to cross their front. Seeing their danger the gentleman endeavored to wheel his team, but before he could do so the cavalry were upon them pell mell. The horse was knocked down and the buggy smashed into kindling, and the dragoons swept over the wreck without a pause or break in their line. The gentleman and lady were extricated from the remains of the buggy by the spectators, who rushed to their assistance, and though fearfully bruised and demoralized, were found, by wonderful good fortune, to have escaped with their lives. By this time the engagement was about concluded, and the crowd began to struggle along every avenue leading to town, blocking up the thoroughfare with a dense mass of horsemen, vehicles and pedestrians. Probably twenty thousand people witnessed the scene, and the only drawback appeared to be the disappointment that the cannonaders failed to fire to sink the floating target. The bay was thronged with excursion steamers crowded with spectators, and the whole affair passed off in the most satisfactory manner.

Grand Display in San Francisco.

The city presents a brilliant and beautiful appearance. To-night the streets are thronged with people, Market and Kearny almost impassable, through surging crowds, windows illuminated, electric lights flashing up and down Market street, rockets rising all over town, a constant rattle of fire crackers and explosion of bombs. Exempt firemen are marching in procession and a glare of torches, bonfires, colored lights and Roman candles light up the heavens. A mist hanging over the city illumines the whole heavens with a ruddy glow. At midnight the Germans will start in torchlight procession, and with a peal of bells and salute of artillery, will wind up to-day's celebration. Thus far but few accidents of a serious nature have been reported, and no fires of any consequence have occurred, although a number have started, but have [illegible] nipped in the bud.

Successful Test of a Fan.

VIRGINIA, July 3.—The fanning apparatus constructed at the mouth of the Gould & Curry tunnel for the purpose of improving the ventilation on the 1,[illegible] foot level drift from the Curry to Con. Va., was tested Saturday night. It works finely, and will probably enable Best and Belcher, through whose ground the drift runs, to commence cross cutting.

Great Preparations for the Fourth.

Great preparations have been made for to-morrow's celebration, which will be the finest ever held here. About $10,000 have been collected. Every precaution has been taken by Chief Engineer McNair to guard against fire, of which there is much dread.

Fatal Fall.

Elisha Cooking, shaft man at the Savage mine, was killed on Saturday evening by falling a distance of 200 feet down the shaft.

PORT TOWNSEND, July 2.—This morning a fire broke out in the rear of Dr. Hill's drug store. Loss, about $5,000. Oil, alcohol and varnish were the principal articles in the building, which made a hot fire. Through the exertion of citizens the fire was confined to the one building.

The Celebration at Seattle.

SEATTLE, June 2.—Extensive preparations are being made for the celebration of the fourth in this city.

The Wolcott out of Commission.

PORT TOWNSEND, July 1.—The crew of the revenue cutter Wolcott has been discharged and the vessel put out of commission, owing to Congress not having appropriated the money with which to meet her expenses.

OREGON.

Emerick, who killed Gordon in Umatilla county last week, was held to answer a charge of murder, without bail. Efforts to have the matter fixed so he can be bailed, are being made, and he is reported to be able to give bonds in any required amount.

Dr. McElderry, post surgeon at Fort Klamath for the past four or five years, has been succeeded by Dr. G. C. Douglas, and took a last long and lingering view of the unparalleled beauties of Klamath land last Thursday, and is now wending his way eastward at the expense of Uncle Sam.

Assays of ore found in the 150-foot tunnel in the Lucky Queen mine, taken from the four foot ledge recently discovered, were made in Roseburg yesterday by Judge W. R. Willis. There were five different assays and the results were $10, $35, $100, $150, and $3,500 to the ton, silver and gold, silver predominating. Nevada must look to its laurels, for Lucky Queen will shortly step upon the heels of its richest quartz mine.

The Plaindealer publishes the following report of the business transacted by the United States Land Office in Roseburg during the past month: Sold for cash, 1,200 acres of agricultural lands, 105 acres of mineral lands. Besides this, there were 21 homestead entries made, embracing 2,900 acres; 18 final homestead entries perfected, embracing 2,3[illegible] acres; 29 pre-emption filings recorded, and 1 donation certificate issued.

On Monday, June 26th the annual meeting of the Board of Regents of the State Agricultural College, took place at the college in Corvallis, and among other, the following important business was transacted: the honorary degree of LL. D. was conferred on that old pioneer and legislator Jesse Applegate of Douglas county. The honorary degree of Doctor Philosophy, (Ph. D.) was unanimously conferred upon President Arnold whose profound philosophical attainments fully entitle him to the honor. Profs. Arnold, Hawthorn and Emery were reelected to their chairs in the faculty. Prof. McElroy was also re-elected to the charge of Preparatory Department, with a salary of $1,000, an increase of $500 over last year. On motion Hon. John Burnett was chosen one of the Regents of Corvallis, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. C. Avery. On motion M. Jacobs was elected a member of the board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation and removal of B. R. Biddle.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

By this time the remark may have become a trite one that in the history of political conventions there has been no contest more memorable than that just ended at Cincinnati; but the remark is not the less true because it is on the lips of every one, and the echoes of admiration for Mr. Blaine's splendid and undaunted fight against combined opponents are still resounding on all sides. Hated intensely by the Democratic party because he has overthrown all its leaders who have met him in debate, and because he is the representative or embodiment of the fighting energy of Republicanism, fiercely opposed by Republican rivals who have scrupled at nothing to break him down, combatted by the whole power of the Administration, and put at a disadvantage by the support given to "favorite sons" by several States merely for local reasons, he nevertheless came astonishingly near a triumph over all opposition, and at last was beaten by a combination of the entire field against him. Such a fact is one of the marvelous things of our political history. It is incomprehensible except to those who know James G. Blaine. To know him and to come within the influence of his magnetic personality is to find a solution of the problem. It has often been said that within the progress of culture opportunities for these brilliant feats of leadership were gone or going, and that no man could again awaken enthusiasm like that kindled for Henry Clay. But these are permanent traits in human nature, and the past thirty days have witnessed as marked an enthusiasm for Blaine, and as signal demonstrations of devotion to him as were ever manifested for Clay. Though beaten for the nomination he is universally regarded as the hero of the time, and is without a rival as the real leader of his party. It is probable that at Oregon's distance from the centers of political action, one cannot have an idea of the height and depth of this fervor for Blaine. In many localities it has been the pervading sentiment, and as the convention approached it took wide possession of the popular mind. Up to the last moment multitudes refused to believe that Cincinnati could possibly present any other name. Among all these there was an impressive silence when the result was known. Hayes is not regarded with disfavor, but the popular heart was not for him. The sober judgment of the country will, however, accept him as the Republican candidate, and when the day of election arrives he will have an earnest and successful support. Democratic opposition, which will soon begin very actively, will press upon and unite the Republican ranks. But there will not be in the campaign that activity, born of enthusiasm, which the nomination of Blaine would have inspired. Hayes will be supported, but there will be none to energize and agonize for his election, as legions of workers would have done for Blaine.

It was the friends of Morton, in Indiana, who started the whole train of slanders by which Blaine has been persecuted, and the friends of Conkling, aided by the administration, and by Democratic hatred in and out of Congress, have vigorously seconded the attacks. Blaine was the man to whom the great mass of Republicans were turning as their candidate. Morton's backers took alarm. The administration likewise, favorable to Conkling and desiring to dilate his nomination, joined in the common cause of intrigue and defamation. Incessantly prompting the Democratic investigating committee, these parties were untiring and relentless in their efforts to ruin Blaine. He had the field to fight. It was a Titanic struggle, and though he has failed he is still mighty in defeat, and his principal adversaries have missed the prize at which they clutched and which each hoped to reach by undermining the object of their common hostility.

In the convention the fact of Grant's opposition to Blaine was fully demonstrated. It was there proven to the country that the son of Cameron had been called into the cabinet, first to beat Blaine, and second to turn the vote of Pennsylvania over to Conkling, whom Grant has freely declared was his earnest choice for the succession. A large part of the Pennsylvania delegation was known to be for Blaine. But Cameron, as secretary of war, though he could not carry the delegation over as the administration desired, was nevertheless able to detach part of it from Blaine, and to produce serious disorganization in the whole of it. Don Cameron himself is of no account; he is utterly without ability or influence proper to himself, and is merely a putty image to represent the Pennsylvania and White House ring. With its men of larger mould and far higher capacity have failed as agents of life insurance or as drummers for cheap book houses, Sargent and Gorham, of California, too odious in their own State to dare to stand before the people for any position, were on hand with Cameron at Cincinnati; and Jones, of bonanza notoriety, with his rotten borough of Nevada in his pocket, was vulgarly conspicuous with his cabal of the administration. These were for Conkling. Their real choice was Grant, for they think the administration that has given us Belknap and Babcock and Boss Shepherd has carried the civil service to a high degree of perfection, which we may scarcely hope to equal hereafter, and certainly may never expect to surpass. Morton's fight was made without help from the inner circle at Washington, and was conspicuous for nothing but bitter hostility to Blaine. The candidacy of Bristow had little of the machinery of politics behind it; few of his supporters were practiced politicians, and knew not how to combine the rival elements of so great a convention. The contest for Bristow was independent of the fight for Conkling and Morton, but, as was evident from the first, had an affinity for Hayes. Yet few believed that Hayes was actually in the fight and not until the night before the balloting began were there any signs that he would be likely to be the man on whom the Grant-Cameron party, together with the trained portion of the Morton forces, would unite with the Bristow men. It was not difficult for the Bristow delegation to go to Hayes, but it was a sore alternative that drove the forces of Conkling and Morton to him. He is not the man they want, but their reluctance toward him was overborne by their intense hatred of Blaine.

A struggle had arisen in the Pennsylvania delegation for the leadership and mastery. A majority had resolved that they would not be transferred to Conkling according to the Grant-Cameron programme, and the spirit of insubordination which for some time had been smothered with greatest difficulty, culminated in open rebellion as soon as the balloting commenced. The strategy of the managers was to hold the delegation to Hartranft and thus keep its votes away from Blaine until the latter should show declining strength, when the votes of his friends in the Pennsylvania delegation would be of no service to him. But all the efforts of the administration ring could not hold the vote solid for Hartranft, it broke, and some of its members went at once to Blaine and others followed after a few ballots more. Jones and Gorham, with a few others of their gang, tried the farce of throwing to Hartranft the few votes they were owners of, in the hope of bringing Pennsylvania back to him, but the device was recognized at once as a characteristic trick of these jobbing politicians, and failed of its object. But Blaine even at last did not get his rightful vote out of the Pennsylvania delegation, for several of his friends were still held in the toils of the ring masters, till it was too late for them to be of service. A majority however at last went for Blaine, preferring defeat with the man who was the choice of the Republicans of their State to success with any others. Blaine's positive strength in the Convention including his friends in the Pennsylvania delegation was about 310 votes, against 446 for all other candidates. He had more on the last ballot, but he was the positive first choice of the number above stated. The delegates who were truly his friends remained with him to the last, undismayed by the general break for Hayes, and numbers still voted for him after it was known that Hayes had a majority and therefore had received the nomination. It was remarked as a splendid manifestation of devotion to the man of their choice, differing totally from the calculating methods of that sort who are anxious to vote for the man who wins. Of this description were many of the delegates from Southern States—numbers of whom had been voting for Blaine under the belief that he would be nominated, but just as soon as Hayes began to rise, they stampeded for him, so as not to be on the losing side.

Hayes had smaller positive strength than any man in the convention except Hartranft, and would have had less than Hartranft, had the latter not been weighted by the Washington-Pennsylvania ring. The delegates from other States, seeing plainly that the name of Hartranft was used for the purpose of injuring Blaine and advancing the cause of Conkling, would not vote for the Pennsylvania man at all, though his record is altogether as good as that of Governor Hayes, and even more conspicuous. Had Hartranft not been thus handicapped, and had he been honestly supported by his State as Hayes was by Ohio, his chances for the nomination would have been even better than those of Hayes. The usage he has received is said not to be agreeable to him. But the Camerons claim him as their property and assert their right to do as they will with their own. Hayes received the nomination because his career has not been conspicuous enough to create antagonisms or provoke enmities. They who nominated him took him to prevent the triumph of one who was treated as their common enemy, because he was as strong as all of them combined. In the Ohio delegation there was no animosity toward Blaine, it went for Hayes merely because he was the candidate presented by the State. Taking out the vote of Ohio, which did not oppose Blaine out of hostility to him, he was as strong as the united forces which his adversaries brought against him, the whole power of the administration included.

In Hayes and Wheeler a ticket is presented in support of which all persons of Republican tendencies or belongings will unite. Those Republicans who have been demanding purer and better methods of administration, and who have been doing much wayward and resentful voting of late years because Grant would not respond to the demand, will accept this ticket, attracted by candidates who bring good names to the cause, while all who make jobbery of politics will join the general current, hoping that after the candidates are elected the old course of things will continue. Conkling, Morton, Sargent and the rest, with all the underlings of each, who look to office-brokerage as their chief good and final hope, will swell the general acclaim. Each chief of a clan or faction will labor for their election, and each will hope to be master of the man after he reaches the summit of power. It is the old, old story. The most eminent talents are not allowed to reach the most exalted stations; respectable mediocrity is put forward, and behind it stands scheming ambition to mould a policy and control administration. So it has been; so it will continue. A man could have been nominated who is strong enough to enforce reforms. But this did not please the managers, and they have given us one whom they hope to use and control. In this purpose, however, they may fail. Hayes, if elected, will have a splendid opportunity. There is ground for hope that he will be equal to it. Nobody expects from the Democratic party any reform in administration. Partisanship and favoritism characterize all its methods. In that party there is no element that protests against the spoils doctrine. In this respect Democracy always obeys its constitutional impulse, and never deviates from its natural character.

That Hayes and Wheeler will be elected there is every probability. Mr. Blaine, with a magnanimity as noticeable as any other trait of his large character, will take the field for the candidates as soon as the state of his health will allow, and it is said will speak in all the [illegible] more than to the man who stands at the head of the ticket, will the eyes of the country turn as he goes forth to awaken the enthusiasm of the country. We shall have an active canvass; the Democratic party will make such an effort as it has not made before for a generation, to get possession of the government. Its spirit and leadership, as before the war, are in the South. Its purposes there obtain their most earnest inspiration. It will be no easy contest. Be assured that every energy the Republican party can summon up will be required to meet the determined purposes of the opposition.

THE TERRITORIES.

The Klickitat campmeeting will commence July 6, 1876.

Mary L. Laws, a young girl sixteen years of age, living near Cedarville, W. T., recently killed a large wild-cat.

A basket meeting will be held at the camp ground at Freeport, Cowlitz county, W. T., on the 15th and 16th days of July.

The Transcript says the hop growers in Puyallup valley will not have the benefit of railroad transportation in marketing the present crop.

D. W. Seelye will discontinue his services as local editor of the Seattle Intelligencer, and will be succeeded by Mr. Thad. Hanford, hitherto an instructor in the university.

J. B. Biles & Co., of Tumwater, have adopted the "rocking process" in their establishment, which aims to keep the hides which are being tanned in motion most of the time.

The camp meeting on Oysterville circuit will commence July 20th at the camp ground near Bay Center. All are invited, and especially the editor of the P. C. Advocate, Revs. I. Dillon, and R. Bentley, of Portland.

Traveling facilities between Olympia and other Sound ports will be largely increased after this. Steamboats will make tri weekly trips to Victoria, four times a week to Port Townsend and intermediate ports, and daily to Steilacoom, Tacoma and Seattle.

The Idaho passed up to Tacoma last week, having on board the 130 Chinamen who came to Victoria from Hongkong on the bark Forward last week. They were all consigned to Portland, and rather than take them round himself, the master of the Forward sent them this way.

The Bellingham Bay Coal Company took out of their mine at Sehome, from Jan. 1 to June 15, 1876, 12,800 tons of coal. The employes number 108. The company owns three vessels, which are constantly employed in transporting the product of their mine to San Francisco.

Loggers on Puget Sound are discouraged by the low prices and limited demand for logs this season. Many of them would shut down camps if the arrangement could be made general, but are unwilling to stop hauling for the benefit of that class who do business for the name regardless of the question of profits.

A general court martial is in session at the garrison at Vancouver, composed of Dr Alexander as President, and Capt. Evans as Judge Advocate, with Major Spurgeon, Capts Pierce and Sladen, and Lieuts. Duncan and Wood. They have seven or eight cases of importance to hear and determine. They are trying privates Mannion and Koss for the shooting of private Conlin a couple of months ago. Mannion plead guilty to the shooting, but avoids by saying it was accidental. Koss is implicated as an accomplice.

Irregularity in the balloting at the late election on a prominent location for the county seat of Lake county, has the effect of defeating its location at Bullard's creek, Goose Lake valley. Had the voting been regular, it is very probable that Goose Lakers would have secured to themselves the county seat.

A couple of Chinamen who were ground-sluicing under a bank in Wm Smith's claim at Cottonwood, Jackson county, last Saturday, were caved in by the bank and killed instantly.

LETTER FROM ELDORADO

ELDORADO, Baker county, June 26.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The political questions that have agitated the public mind to such an extent for the last two or three months in Baker county have finally all been set at rest by the "time-honored and glorious Democracy" making a clean sweep, on June 5th, and leaving nothing of the "pinto ticket" save its brief history of gallant and heroic struggles for success and its untimely end. Of course, Democracy has won a "glorious victory," and the Bedrock Democrat is once more happy. The officers elect will now have time to quiet their nerves, smooth down their rumpled plumage and get ready to resume specie payment. Those that have won new hats can enjoy them in peace, and those that risked their judgment against Democracy and lost can have the consolation of reflecting upon the uncertainties of all things mortal. Well, we feel bad about it, since all indications promised success, and we thought the day of redemption of Baker county had come. But since Democracy is an institution [illegible] by law, and has been fairly victorious, we, as a good and loyal citizen, feel disposed to make the most of the situation. We will put away our handkerchief, go at our legitimate business with more energy, pay our taxes promptly, read the Bedrock carefully, treat our officers with becoming respect, quietly and peaceably submit to the powers that be, and try to be wiser, if not better men.

THE MINES OF EASTERN OREGON.

After the stirring scenes of such an exciting campaign as we have just past through, our thoughts naturally revert to matters of business, the mining prospects, and the probable financial condition at the close of the season. Much has been said and written in regard to Eastern Oregon and its resources, and many wrong impressions exist relating to its mineral wealth. Constant investigation and development go to show that much of the former prospecting for both placer and quartz mines have been done in haste and with a lack of judgment.

Thus, the main and leading pursuit, must as time advances attract increased attention. It is unreasonable to suppose that any such results are to be obtained as in a former day in California, although we may look for some placer and quartz that may be termed rich. Placer mining has been carried on to a limited extent in this section, known abroad as the Willow creek mines, for quite a number of years, but owing to the scarcity of natural water, none of the main creeks where we look for the permanent and reliable mines have yet been fairly opened. They are deep and expensive to open, and to some extent must await capital for their development. Quartz mining is yet in its infancy here, but that abundance of the material exists that will eventually give employment to hundreds of workmen, cannot be questioned. The world-renowned gold and silver lodes of Nevada that have built up cities and affected the commerce of the world, are not richer per ton than rock that has been discovered in this part of Oregon. An immense field is open here for various pursuits aside from that of mining, and if some of the hundreds and thousands who suffer for bread in Eastern cities were permanently located on the vacant lands of Eastern Oregon, with the intention of improving them and being independent of employers, there would be less of suffering, want and idleness than now exists.

The Eldorado ditch is now in fine working order, and is supplying the miners in this district as far as its capacity will admit, with Burnt river water, which sweeps the light soil of the gulches down on the bottoms of Willow creek, causing many of the owners of lands along that creek to sigh as they note the gradual encroachment of tailings upon their cultivated fields. All seem intent upon bringing about a better state of things, in a financial point [illegible] by the free distribution of a little more dust of the right kind.

LENI.

A SPLENDID SPEECH.

One of the best, as well as one of the most amusing speeches we have had the privilege of reading for many a day is that delivered by Hon. William A. Howard, of Michigan, at the ratification meeting at Cincinnati, after the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler. The Chairman having announced that Gov. Howard would address the meeting he came forward on his crutches amidst loud cheering and sat while making his speech. He said:

"Fellow citizens, I would rather infer that you had a penchant for cripples by the way you applaud me. [Laughter and applause.] The first remark I have to make is this, that although I have been trotted out here as Gov. Howard, of Michigan, I ain't Governor and never was, and probably never shall be. [Renewed laughter] I wanted to exercise a little influence on the convention, and, as some of them got it into their heads that I was a Governor of Michigan, I thought I would not correct their mistake till the convention was over, [laughter] but now that I have no further use for this title, like an honest man, I surrender it. [Renewed laughter and applause.] Several times in the course of the day I have been called Senator Howard. Well, I ain't a Senator either [laughter]; but now, as I am a very honest man I will surrender that, too. [Applause and laughter] The nearest I ever came to being a Senator was, that I was once a Black Republican member of Congress, and that I will not give up at all. [Tremendous applause] You see, I am disposed to do this business rather easy, and I hope you are, for then we shall get along together first-rate. [Cheers and laughter.] I was a Black Republican member of Congress when they used to scowl at us like a lot of hounds. They sent me off into Kansas among the border ruffians, hoping that I would be killed. We had a pretty hard time of it there, and we made what was called the Kansas report, and, as I was chairman of the committee, I got most of the glory of it, but your distinguished Senator Sherman did the most of the work. [Renewed laughter] They called that report the Black Republican Bible, and I rather guess it was. A Democrat once accused me of being the author of the Black Republican Bible, and I told him I did not know how much Bible there was in it, and I rather thought it wrought out considerable political damnation for them anyhow. [Tremendous applause and shouts of laughter.]

Now, fellow-citizens, I am an old man and rather feeble, and they have put me through pretty hard to-day, so I can not make much of a speech, but I will say this, that I see that this platform and this ticket that we have nominated means honest business, and plenty of it. [Cheers.] There is not going to be any gammon about it. If anybody or any party can nominate a ticket that will give greater assurance of what the people are calling for under the name of Reform, why, I would like to know who the candidate is going to be. I sat down more than two weeks ago to study the subject. I had nothing else to do, and so I gave my time to it, and I came to the deliberate conclusion that of all the men in the United States of sufficient ability to administer the government properly and at the same time give the people the strongest assurance of those great Republican principles which underlie this whole thing, namely: exact equality of right to all our citizens, an honest Administration without fear or favor, without rings or any combination in the shape of "Personal Government."—I believe these two men to be Bristow or Hayes, I did not much care which, at the head of the ticket, and Wheeler at the other, and then they would stand against the world. [Applause.] Well, we sat there and we threw our scattering vote, for we are no a populous State, till I saw where the great States would go as between Bristow and Hayes, and then I said to the boys, "Now is our time," and we struck, and we hit the animal right between the eyes. [Applause and laughter.] There was no understanding among us about it, we had had no consultation on the subject with any one; but the first thing I knew there was Harlan up there saying that Bristow had withdrawn, and that Kentucky was giving her entire vote for Hayes. Now, having got mixed up in the business, I suppose we have got to stand by it and vote the ticket. [Laughter.] That nomination will do more good than shaking hands over five hundred 'bloody chasms.' [Cheers.] Now we are going to have an honest administration. Can you believe that, when all the facts of the case are fairly before the people, can you conceive that there are a thousand true Republicans that will bolt that ticket? There is not a Blaine man, there is not a Morton man, there is not a Conkling man, there is not a Hartranft man, that will do it. It is a little singular that, of all the candidates, Hayes is the only one that I never saw, and it will never do him a bit of hurt if he never sees me. [Great laughter.] We are going to have a sure victory. The nomination and platform are going a long way toward drawing that glorious old Whig element in Kentucky and the other Southern States, which has never been at home in the Democratic party, and which has never accepted the doctrine that this is not a nation, but a league.

And [illegible] fellow citizens, I wish to make an announcement. This ticket will win, but that is not my announcement. I am an old man, and I hope I may never have another office; but I am going clear down to Washington, on or before the 5th of March, 1877, to beg and entreat of President Hayes by all that is sacred to keep Mr. Bristow [tremendous applause], to keep Mr. Bristow Secretary of the Treasury till every dollar becomes an honest dollar, and every [illegible] thief has been hunted out and punished. Then, like the old Simeon, I am ready to depart. [Thunders of applause.]

TUESDAY MORNING JULY 4 1876

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

A nation of freemen is on dress parade to-day. The experiment of a hundred years has demonstrated the possibility of republican government and the power of moral forces to rule an empire. A century is not a long time in the life of a nation, but it is long enough to test the stability of civil institutions unless the course of events is uncommonly smooth, which certainly has not been the case with the United States. The government has passed through an ordeal to which many monarchies have been found unequal and has come forth only stronger but not less free. The American Republic is in the lists at the beginning of its second century not as a timid and untrained youth but as an athlete, elate with the pride of success already achieved and with confidence of greater success yet to be achieved. Patriotism takes an hilarious holiday now to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the day on which the old bell in Philadelphia proclaimed with its tongue of iron that monarchy in the American colonies was dead and that the right of every man and woman to a chance in the struggle of life was to be asserted thenceforth by men fit to be free. The duty of the day is enjoyment not reflection. Leave for another day analysis and moralizing on the question of wherein our development has been best and wherein deficient. Leave for another meditation upon the comparative excellency of various forms of government and let patriotism hold a joyous carnival.

TIME FOR WORK

Not least significant among the evidences that the reform Republicans all over the Union will give a cordial support to Hayes and Wheeler, is the action of the Union League club and the Reform club of New York. For some time past both these organizations have been estranged from the party because of its unrepublican methods and its subserviency to rings. In other words, they joined in the universal demand for a reform of the whole administration, and agreed with those who believed the way to compel the abandonment of evil practices was to refuse their support to the party so long as those practices prevailed. Their position has been well understood, and the Democracy counted much upon their defection in case the Washington ring should succeed in naming the candidate of the Cincinnati convention. But the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler overthrew all such hopes at once. Both the clubs passed without opposition, resolutions declaring the nomination to be a sufficient pledge for reform inside the party and especially for the adoption of a purer system of civil service.

The bold stand which these two organizations had taken against the dominant element of the Republican party gives peculiar weight to their endorsement of the candidates. When such organizations declare for the nominees of the party convention, it is safe to assume that very few persons who can be properly classed as Republican, whether known as Liberals, Independents or "straight" Republicans, will withhold their support from them on the day of the election. There can be a united Republican vote. Those who vote down as Democrats for the future.

It is doubtless true that a considerable number of voters who formerly gave their support to the Republican party have concluded the best way to extirpate what they deem a great evil in the administration of the government, is to overthrow the party itself and trust the future to develope a party which will represent the progressive ideas of the times as the Republican party did before it fell into the hands of the rings. Practically these may be set down as Democrats, for the present campaign at least. Their number is perhaps not sufficiently great to determine the election in any State, and yet it is not to be forgotten that in the States which have been very close they are quite as numerous relatively as where the Republicans have a broad margin to calculate upon. This vote may turn the scale in some of these close States. The Republicans can not afford, therefore to sit idly down and await the victory. It may never come. With an active and energetic campaign, equal in those respects at least to that which it is manifest is to be made by the Democracy, success is sure. With a campaign of supineness and languor there is a strong probability of defeat. The Republican party has not to-day any such odds as to warrant the belief that it can win the race without exertion. Energy and activity are the conditions of success, and it is time that fact were being recognized throughout the country, and especially is it time for those who have the directing of the campaign in this State to recognize it unless they are willing to see Oregon ranged in the Democratic ranks.

CAUTION! CAUTION!

One girl was saved from the arts of fiends and taken home by a Christian lady last night. Another was led off by two men while she was gone with the first. Policemen on those beats must see and do their duty! They, too, are watched.

Look out for vile men. Take care of your girls! Let no girl go near the circus tent or shows to listen or see without her father or brother or well known friend goes with her. Let not vice and crime triumph and make the Centennial a shame! Every citizen should consider himself a policeman for the purpose of saving the inexperienced and unsuspecting girls who visit our city from the hands of the infamous scoundrels who lie in wait for them. No man or woman can afford to be indifferent to this matter. Better a thousand times that we had no celebration than that it be made an opportunity for these fiends to accomplish their infernal purposes. We must know also whether we have a police force for the protection of the people or for the protection of villains. If the force is not large enough let it be made so at once. If it is not vigilant and prompt then let there be a set of men appointed who will make it so. Parents take care of your girls. Girls listen to no offer of kindness or attention from one—man or woman—whom you do not know well. You can not be too much on your guard. If you are a stranger in the city, you may find yourself at the end of a two minutes walk even in this little city in a place whence there is no escape except on terms you can not accede to. If this sounds like unusually plain talk remember that the cases above referred to occurring on the very first evening of the Centennial week show that the occasion demands plain talk.

Gen Kilpatrick who has for some time past stood aloof from the Republican party says he regards the nomination of Hayes as the best that could have been made, not only to secure the votes of the people but to fill the Presidential chair with a man worthy to occupy the place once occupied by Lincoln. He declares himself ready to give his entire time from now till the day of the election laboring for the election of the ticket.

We are glad to have an opportunity to call attention to the note from Bishop Morris which appears this morning giving the true history of the terrible casualty by which three men, one of them the Bishop's son, lost their lives, and from which it appears that Mr Day sacrificed his own life in the endeavor to save Mr O Neil, just as Rodney Morris laid down his life in the effort to rescue the other two.

What is the thing we call reform in our political nomenclature? What does it imply and what objects of attainment in national affairs does it indicate?—World

The Democratic answer to these momentous conundrums is that the thing we call reform is the turning over of the government to the Democrats, and the end to be attained, a repetition of Buchanan's administration.

The largest Republican mass meeting ever held in New Orleans was that held to ratify the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler.

BRIEF NOTES.

All Portland is decorated

Collation at Turn Halle this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Summer tourists will soon commence their travels

Every urchin can afford to wave a ten cent flag now.

People are pouring in from the country in all directions.

One hundred years ago to-day and the old Liberty Bell was rung

Every possible precaution should be observed to guard against fire.

As we write, the sharp detonations of Chinese bombs ring in our ears

Talking societies are multiplying in these mature years of the nation's age.

The line of March will be followed by watering carts to dampen down dust

Bunting and evergreens, and evergreens and bunting greet the eye in every direction.

Thousands of yards of bunting are floating in the wind in this city at present writing

Rev R Bentley and family intend to depart for Chicago before a great many days Many friends will regret their departure

Remember the grand centennial concert at the Taylor-street Methodist church Programme will appear to morrow morning

The receipts of the Public School concert recently held netted upwards of $125 which will very materially aid the object—a library

A burning chimney on Seventh street, between Columbia and Clay streets called out the fire department yesterday afternoon No damage

Presently it may be found that the best way to play base ball is to pitch balls that can easily be batted and then trusting to fielding to put the runs out

Mayor Chapman W S Ladd, Esq S G Reed Esq and Hon Henry Failing were serenaded at their respective residences last evening by the Aurora band

The St. Andrew's society will meet at 9 A M to take part in the procession A full turn out is desired also to the picnic of the society to morrow at the South end

One hundred rounds of ammunition were brought up from Fort Vancouver, and were turned over at once to Capt Mountain by Gen Howard and will be used to day

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

The Opening of the Celebration.

First Day.

At an early hour yesterday morning the citizens of Portland were generally very busily employed in preparations for the extensive festivities of the week, and before noon hundreds of business houses private residences and all the public buildings in the city were adorned by the American colors Thousands upon thousands of yards of bunting floated in the breeze under one of Oregon's brightest skies

Occasional crowds of people from remote localities had been arriving in the city for two or three days but they scarcely made a showing compared with the vast numbers that came yesterday by all the lines of transportation centering here The morning and evening trains on both sides of the river by the boats three or four of them from the Upper Willamette from Lower Columbia, from Vancouver from Astoria and Kalama, and everywhere where the boats run brought hundreds and thousands of people of all ages sexes and conditions in life

THE DECORATIONS

In the city, which are profuse beyond our ability to describe at present and which will receive more extended notice hereafter are more extensive than was even anticipated by the executive committee, who have spared no pains to make the celebration in its novel public features entirely successful They may congratulate themselves even at this early a period in the week that the citizens generally are disposed without exception also to second their efforts and all seem to join in the endeavor to make such an ovation in honor of the birthday of the American Republic as shall long live in the memory of the people of this western land

As all things must have a beginning so our account of this great occasion in the history of the nation, and of the northwest coast in particular, will begin with the reception by Willamette Engine Co No 1 of Portland, of

THE ALBANY FIREMEN

From the organization of the Albany Fire Department up to the present time peculiarly friendly relations have existed between it and Portland firemen and its members have always been more than welcome to this city, whether they come as firemen or as individuals In addition to the general invitation to all the citizens and societies of Oregon a special invitation was given to the Albany firemen to make their headquarters with Willamette Engine Co No 1 during their stay at the celebration this week

At five o clock yesterday afternoon the first parade of the week, which is to be noted for display, took place on the arrival of the steamer Willamette Chief from Albany, bringing, in addition to a large number of passengers Albany Fire Co No 1 and Linn Co No 2 the latter bringing with them, their splendid Clapp & Jones engine Willamette Engine Co No 1 led by the Aurora brass band discoursing splendid music, met them at the wharf when the steamer landed, and gave them a hearty fireman's welcome to the city The engine of Linn Engine Co No 2 was taken charge of by Willamettes and drawn from the boat to the dock where two of the most elegant horses in Oregon White Prince and White Rose, owned by Mr Myers of Jackson county were hitched to it and preceded by the firemen took their way to the house of No 1's where the engine was housed and the firemen of Albany made to feel more entirely at home by a brief speech by Foreman Protzman to which Joe Webber, chief engineer of the Albany department, responded in good style The whole affair was conducted with that hearty spirit characteristic of firemen and was witnessed by vast crowds of people along the entire line of its march

THE PROCESSION,

To form at 10 o'clock this morning promises to be the most imposing in its array, and the largest in its number that has ever been seen north of the city of San Francisco The military both of the U S A and the O S M the firemen of this and several other departments, the various societies federal State county and city officials the trades and professions, and, important among all, the stirring music from eight bands of 16 to 24 pieces each, will serve to make up a pageant that will be at once grand and impressive to the beholder

MILITARY NOTES.

First Sergeant John Walsh Co F, Fourth Artillery having been discharged as a witness from attendance upon the United States district court for the State of Oregon will join his command at Black Point in the department of California

So much of the term of imprisonment of Frank Polder, general prisoner Fort Canby, Cape Hancock Washington Territory awarded by General Order No 6, March 1 series of 1875 which imposed confinement at hard labor for two years is remitted, and he will be set at liberty

It being impracticable to contract for the same no bids having been received under advertisement inviting proposals and the public exigencies requiring the immediate delivery of the article, the chief commissary of subsistence is authorized to purchase in open market at lowest obtainable rates, 5 000 pounds lard for immediate shipment to posts in the department

MICHAEL DAY.

PORTLAND July 3 1876

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In your account of the recent terrible disaster by which three persons lost their lives almost instantly you have done full justice to the heroism of the youngest of them but the circumstances of the case, as given by the only witness lead to the belief that the same brave and self sacrificing spirit was shown by Michael Day He was not caught in the pit but went down, it appears voluntarily to rescue O Neil from the peril he was in and as it proved to share in the same instant death It seems that these men while not relatives were old and intimate acquaintances, and much accustomed to work together, and to befriend each other in many ways O Neil the stronger and much the more vigorous man was the first to be caught in peril, while the smaller and weaker promptly went to his rescue—vain as it was This was an heroic act, that in justice to this man's memory should not be overlooked, while we are giving the history of this sad occurrence It was a terrible disaster, but it has called out such expressions of sympathy and such unnumbered acts of kindness toward the living sufferers as to fill their hearts with inexpressible thankfulness

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Under date of July 3d, our regular correspondent writes as follows

The display of bunting in honor of the day promises to be slim to morrow

The College Base Ball Club are up in arms and will be with you to morrow in full strength

A few capitolians propose spending the 4th at Aurora while others will visit Sublimity, Turner's and Brooks

The Daily Statesman of this city will suspend publication during the entire week and the Mercury will suspend until Thursday evening next

We understand that Mr Peers, of Vancouver has been selected as Umpire for the proposed game between the College and Pioneer base ball clubs in your city

The train this morning went down well filled while the afternoon mail train consisted of some fourteen cars well filled and the river steamers left here fairly loaded to the guards

At the annual election for chief engineer of the Salem Fire Department held this morning John S Olinger was re elected by a handsome majority, he receiving 95 of the 162 votes cast Wm T Cox was elected assistant without opposition

The Centennial services at the Congregational church last evening were of a most interesting nature The audience room was tastefully decorated with flowers evergreens appropriate mottoes etc Whittier's celebrated Centennial anthem was rendered by the choir

Our genial old friend A B Cosper Esq, was caned by his aged consort on Sunday morning last. It was an elegant affair, gold headed etc costing about $85 in San Francisco W W Martin, our well known jeweler, made the selection evincing his customary fine taste It was intended as a birthday gift on the occasion of the sixty fifth anniversary of that auspicious event

Salemites desiring a nice quiet celebration of the day we celebrate will be accommodated to morrow by a religious observance of the occasion at Marion Square under the auspices of the city clergy. It is proposed to hold a union prayer meeting which eventually is intended to dissolve itself into a basket picnic and general good time This, however is not expected to interfere with your celebration in Portland which by the way, will attract a large number of capitolians

Ordinance No. 1760.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND ORDINANCE No. 178 entitled an Ordinance concerning offences and disorderly conduct.

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

Section 1. That section two of said Ordinance No. 178 entitled "an Ordinance concerning offences and disorderly conduct" be so amended as to read as follows:

Section 2. That any person or persons who shall fire any cannon pistol, gun or rifle, or any other species of fire arms within the following limits, the Willamette river on the east and Twelfth street on the west, the north line of Caruthers Addition on the south and K street in Couch's Addition on the north shall on conviction thereof before the police judge be subject to a penalty of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars or imprisonment at the discretion of the police judge not exceeding twenty days. Provided That the chief of police may permit upon the National Holidays and other days of public celebration, any appropriate display of fireworks and other instruments named in this section and the firing thereof except the firing of cannon.

Passed the Common Council, June 28, 1876.
W. S. CALDWELL
Auditor and Clerk.
Approved June 30, 1876

THE SEA-SIDE HOUSE,
CLATSOP BEACH,
IS NOW OPEN FOR THE RECEPTION OF VISITORS.
J. C. OLMSTED.

BAY VIEW HOUSE,
BAKER'S BAY, UNITY, W. T.
MR. DEXTER INFORMS THE PUBLIC that his House is now open for the reception of guests. Its advantages in every respect over any other Summer Resort are too well known to Oregonians to repeat here. To strangers I will say that the place is in plain sight and across the Bay from Astoria on the sheltered side of Cape Hancock and very near and adjacent to the Fort and lighthouse, on Bakers Bay, a beautiful sheet of water unequaled for Sailing, Rowing, Fishing and Bathing. The dark forest with its picturesque drives, its mountain springs, profusion of wild berries, wild flowers and ferns, the horse trail to the Cape, for equestrians or walkers is one of the most delightful excursions to the eye ever witnessed. The bay beaches, its caves, luxuriantly wooded Island, its views of Astoria, Chinook, Fort Stevens and old Tillamook, in the blue distance.
The courteous hospitality of the officers of the Garrison at the Fort, and also of Mr. Munson and family, of the Lighthouse, make that place well worthy of a visit.
The Salt Water Bathing in the bay within a few feet of the hotel, excels anything far or near for warmth of the water and mildness of its waves, far preferable to the heavy surf and cold winds for women, children and invalids, while the sturdy swimmer or those who love the foaming surf in a few minutes walk will find a beach unsurpassed in beauty, hard and level for one continuous drive of thirty miles. At this end are huge rocks stretching out into the ocean, from which fishers take from the sea Bass, Rockfish, Tom-Cod, Torgs, etc., etc. Crabs, Clams, Oysters, &c. In abundance, (and the Table will never lack a sufficiency of those desirable adjuncts.) Boats upon the Bay, Saddle Ponies for the children. Teams to the Weather Beach. Croquet, Swings, Quoits, etc., FREE to Guests.
Prices reduced from the old tariff.
To those who would like to camp out, wood and water and use of ground free. Groceries, provisions, milk, eggs, butter, etc. for sale at a small profit, and excellent board at the Hotel if they prefer at fair rates. A large Livery Stable, two new and fine Ten Pin Alleys, attached to the place.
Stage Office to Oysterville, Postoffice, Wells Fargo & Co's office also there. No raw winds or damp fogs and rain. Beautiful walks and shady groves cannot be found. The only regret the landlord has is that his house is no larger, but his grounds are large enough and beautiful enough to warrant next season a Hotel worthy of the surroundings.
C. H. DEXTER, Proprietor.
